

Section 2.1: Intro to Probability

Friday, May 15, 2015
9:13 AM

probability - used as a tool to evaluate the reliability of conclusions about a population based on a sample used two ways -

if the population is known, use probability to give the likelihood of the next experimental outcome inferential

statistics

if the population is unknown, use probability to draw conclusions about the population based on your sample